State Tribunal Gives Unanimous Decision Against Impounding Evidence

RESUME CONSIDERATION

Court is Now Considering Judge's Ruling Against The Legality of Legislative Acts

(By International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 7.—In a unanimous decision, the State Supreme Court today set aside Judge Paul N. Schaeffer's order impounding the evidence in the Dauphin County Grand Jury investigation of Governor George H. Earle and 13 high-ranking Democratic leaders of Pennsylvania.

The lower court jurist, specially presiding over the proposed Grand Jury probe, lacked power to make or enforce such a decree, the high tribunal ruled in its per curiam decree.

Judge Schaeffer, a member of the Berks County Court, declared two acts of the administration's Grand Jury program unconstitutional; ordered impounded the evidence of District Attorney Carl B. Shelley, of Dauphin County, and forbade Shelley and his chief witnesses, Charles J. Margiotti and Edward Friedman from testifying before a House committee.

Immediately after Chief Justice John W. Kephart announced the curiam order, the high tribunal resumed consideration of Judge Schaeffer's ruling against the legality of the laws recently enacted by the Democratic controlled House of Representatives.

Two Lots of Tickets

(By "The Stroller")

The Democratic outing, Sunday, came near being a riot. It was all because some individual took the liberty of having tickets printed and distributed without the proper authorization.

According to the rumors in circulation about town, the authorized committee distributed tickets to a selected list and they in turn were to sell the pasteboards or distribute them as instructed. This they did.

But then some unauthorized individual or individuals had another lot of tickets printed and they in turn are said to have widely distributed these.

When the hour for the outing arrived you can imagine what happened when the holders of the unauthorized and the holders of the authorized tickets of admission arrived at the point of entrance. The committee at once became prostrate with fear. There never would be enough refreshments to go around. "Where are all the people coming from?" asked one member of the committee of another. Then suspicion began to arise and a careful check-up revealed the forgery.

Those who had attended to distributing the authorized tickets were sent for and stood at the entrance to identify those to whom the right tickets had been sold, and they only were admitted.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

(Copyright, 1938, by The Baltimore Sun)

The "Purge" Has Failed

NOW that the Nevada primaries have been held and the President has made his punitive expedition into Maryland, it seems worth while to check up on the great "purge." What are the results to date and what the prospects? It will be recalled that last year among the Democratic Senators who opposed the President's court-packing plan were nine who had to run for re-election this year. These included Adams, of Colorado; Loneragan, of Connecticut; Clark, of Missouri; Van Nuys, of Indiana; Gillette, of Iowa; Smith, of South Carolina; McCarren, of Nevada; Tydings, of Maryland, and George, of Georgia.

MOST of these Senators had still further aroused White House resentment by refusal to vote for the reorganization bill, through opposition to a renewal of Federal pump-priming and exhibitions of distaste for other governmental policies. It was for the liquidation of these nine that Senator Guffey called in a Senate speech last summer. They were marked for

Cycling Craze To Blame For Accident Increase

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 7.—The cycling craze spreading over the country is responsible for a 63 per cent increase in bicycle accidents here during the first six months of 1938, a report submitted to the National Safety Council by police shows.

The increase was even greater during July of this year, when there were 215 accidents reported to police, compared to 102 reported accidents in July, 1937.

The death toll is mounting also, the report points out. Up to August of 1938, five persons were killed on bicycles. Only one cyclist was fatally injured in 1937.

With the growth of bicycle ownership in the city to the 100,000 mark, a new type of traffic offender has appeared—the hit-run bicyclist. In two recent weeks, police in three instances had to hunt for riders who knocked down children and sped away.

Local authorities advocate the passage of a registration and inspection ordinance to meet the exigencies of the new situation, in which according to police most cyclists either ignore or don't know that a bicycle is subject to much the same laws as the automobile.

Warns Motorists of The Opening of The Schools

As the school season opens here today, the Automobile Club of Philadelphia—A. A. A. issues a warning to motorists to obey the law when passing school buildings.

"Although many motorists do not seem to be aware of the fact," William P. Swift, the Club's Safety Director, said yesterday, "the State Motor Vehicle Code restricts speed to 15 miles an hour when passing schools at recess time, or while children are entering or leaving during opening and closing hours."

"This applies even though no 15-mile speed limits are posted. There are always ample signs to warn motorists as they approach school buildings."

In the course of the coming school year, The Automobile Club of Philadelphia—A. A. A. will place 38,000 safety posters and 38,000 pieces of safety literature in the schools of Philadelphia and Delaware County and the schools in those sections of Bucks and Montgomery Counties which are in the Club's territory.

The Club has equipped 2000 boys and girls with belts and badges to be used in school safety patrol duty.

SECOND AND THIRD OFFENDERS RECEIVE NO MERCY IN COURT

Judge Warns One Not To Apply for Parole Before Minimum Sentence

MEXICAN GUILTY

New York State Barrister Pleads Guilty To Driving While Drunk

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 7.—Second and third offenders received no mercy yesterday when they appeared before President Judge Hiram H. Keller in the Bucks County court.

Judge Keller yesterday sentenced Arthur Ahlum, Emilie, to serve two to four years in the Eastern State Penitentiary after he had pleaded guilty to felonious entry, larceny and receiving stolen goods while on a probationary period. Ahlum, married, is alleged to have stolen money and jewelry. He was before Judge Keller on two previous occasions and given a chance.

"You had your chance, now the Court is going to put you away," Judge Keller remarked.

One year in the Bucks County Prison is what John Krajcan, of Haycock, will have to serve for violating his parole on a charge of driving while drunk. In 1932 Krajcan served six months in the County Prison and in 1936 was sentenced to serve two months to three years. Yesterday he pleaded guilty to driving while drunk and was fined $1 and costs and sentenced to three months to one year, this sentence to run concurrently with the one more year on the balance of his parole.

"Do not try and apply for a parole before the one year is up," Judge Keller told Krajcan. Krajcan was arrested by Private Fred Aramone, of the Quakertown sub-station of Motor Police. The defendant admitted that he operated without a license, too.

Louis Perez, New York City, a Mexican, pleaded guilty yesterday to stealing three suits of clothes from a Doylestown men's store. Perez was caught with the goods and was given another week "to talk if he desires," and told who his companion was who was with him the day the theft was committed. Perez also asked the Court if he could waive his right to take the witness stand and this was granted.

"He seems to know what it is all about," the Court remarked. The case was continued until next week.

A fine of $200 and costs was the sentence Judge Keller imposed on Guy Hughes Reigel, of Larchmont, N. Y., well-known member of the Bar of New York State, whose letters of recommendations yesterday were written by two judges of the Supreme Court of New York. He pleaded guilty to driving while drunk on January 3, near Langhorne, when his car overturned.

Private Bride, of the Oxford Valley substation of Motor Police, arrested Reigel, whom he testified "had the smell of liquor on his breath and who had a staggering gait." Reigel told the Court that he was on his way to Philadelphia at the time with his wife and that nobody was injured.

James Francis, of Dalton, Pa., who stole an automobile a week ago while it was parked in Court House Park in full view of its owner who saw the thief leaving, pleaded guilty before Judge Keller. He was sentenced to one year and six months to five years in the Bucks County Prison. The car was stolen from Harry L. Houseworth, of Upper Black Eddy on August 25, while Houseworth was working with some stone masons near the Court House. Francis was caught after running away after he had wrecked the stolen car.

Pleading guilty to driving while drunk, Judge Keller sentenced him to one year and six months to five years in the Bucks County Prison.

PEDESTRIANS IN TRAFFIC

Are Pedestrians Necessary? was the question of a round-table discussion held recently at Ann Arbor, Mich., as a feature of a two-week session of the National Institute for Traffic Safety Training. The pedestrian's side of the argument was upheld by a high school principal, a former mayor, and a parent; the motorists being represented by a traffic safety director of the American Automobile Association.

The literal text of the proposition we suppose, is not open to serious debate; but it seems to focus attention on the pedestrian as an important factor in the problem of safe driving. It appears that 75 per cent of traffic deaths in some cities involve pedestrians.

Pedestrians and motorists are often apt to be the same individuals, with so many pedestrians having occasion to drive cars and so many motorists having occasion to walk. This suggestion, of course, does not include children in the picture. On all accounts, it would seem that the viewpoints of drivers and of pedestrians should be educated to a basis of mutual consideration and allowances.

Persons foot do not readily appreciate the mechanical problems of the driver, just as persons at the wheel of a car are apt to be thoughtless of the difficulties of the pedestrian. Safe driving is quite impossible without the corresponding factor of safe walking and vice versa. Thus the equation of intelligent caution is fixed.

The person at the wheel is likely to be impelled by his position to strain the bounds of his own security; and the person afoot may be similarly inclined to feel he is entitled to a certain indulgence in traffic.

Progress in traffic safety will be in proportion to a heightened consciousness on the part of both the pedestrians and motorists as alike necessary and mutually dependent for safety.

A town planner in the West advises placing all public statues in the middle of ornamental ponds. A great deal depends on what is meant by "middle."

The objection to falling in love with an ankle is that an ankle knows so little about cooking.

After all, you can't judge a man by his clothes or a woman by her lack of them.

The only way to protect some persons from themselves is to put them in jail.

Some persons run up bills and then have to be run down by collectors.

The Great Game of Politics

Maryland, into whose State he came on Labor Day, accompanied by his opponent, Congressman Lewis; that astute Master of Jobholders, Mr. James A. Farley, and various aides and advisers. The indications are that in Maryland and Georgia the President will not prevail and that Senator Tydings and Senator George will be renominated. But whether they are or not, it is clear the "purge" has already failed. Seven have been sustained by their constituents. The other two probably will be. In that event the failure will be complete and overwhelming instead of merely decisive and emphatic. In that event, certain things about 1940 will be so clear that no one can mistake them.

FOR EXAMPLE, if, as a result of the "purge," all nine or even a majority—say five or six—of these independent Democratic Senators had been defeated, the New Deal control of the party convention in 1940 would have been conceded. It would have been clear that the Democratic voters wanted a continuation of Roosevelt leadership and no change in direction. It would have meant complete New Deal domination of the next session of Congress, too. It would have justified the claim of the radical White House group that all the voters needed to punish those who refused to follow Mr. Roosevelt was opportunity. All that being true, it is equally clear that the success of seven or eight or all of those listed for defeat will have quite the opposite effect. It means that the Democratic party in 1940 again will be in the hands of the traditional Democrats of the Garner-Harrison type; that the views of Democrats like Glass and Byrd, of Virginia, will be sought and heeded; that the Brain Trust boys at the White House will be impotent; that the day of New Deal domination will have ended and a return to the principles of the dishonored 1932 platform be certain.

IN BRIEF, the complete failure of the "purge" definitely means that in 1940 Mr. Roosevelt will neither name the candidate nor mold the platform. And there is another point—the significance of the success of the seven, eight or nine Democrats who voted against the President's court-packing bill, is increased by the defeat of two—Mr. McAdoo in California and Mr. Pope in Idaho—who voted for it. And there is the further fact, that the only thing that has saved Senator Guffey, of Pennsylvania, who first publicly announced the "purge," from being purged himself is that he is not running this year. But he was "thrown out the window" by his own organization.

DEMOCRACY AND A Free Press ARE INSEPARABLE

FREE GOVERNMENT cannot perish while a free press survives; on the other hand its days are numbered when freedom of the press disappears. When the Constitution of the United States was in process of adoption after the American Revolution, the people demanded that it guarantee freedom of the press, freedom of speech, and freedom of worship. First hand experience with despotism in Europe had taught them that liberty is an illusion unless people have the right to voice and print their own opinion, the right to nominate and elect candidates in opposition to the government, the right to pursue their own plans within the limits of the law. They knew that democracy and freedom of the press go hand in hand, one and inseparable. Freedom of the American press today is the first line of defense established for the security of free government in America. The welfare and independence of your newspaper is the welfare and independence of your nation.

"The ELEVEN OF DIAMONDS" by BAYNARD H. KENDRICK

SYNOPSIS

Edward Fowler, a wealthy gambler, is murdered at the Sunset Bridge Club in Miami. His body, with a knife in the back, is found in the poker room. Fowler had played bridge that evening with Millie LaFrance, a seductive blond; Ben Eckhardt and Dave Button, but quit the game when Millie accused him of throwing it. He paid the owner, Toby Munroe, for his and Millie's losses and ostensibly left, only to be found dead in an adjoining room early the next morning. A mysterious prowler discovered the body, following which the police received an anonymous phone call informing them of the crime. Two weeks previous, Fowler had searched the hotel suite of the Durlin Bessingers. Bessinger claimed to be a wealthy grain merchant but Fowler believed this only a blind as letters found in a trunk relating to his grain business were evidently written by Bessinger to himself. The Bessingers were at the club the night Fowler died. Bruce Farraday, the millionaire, enlists the services of private detective, Miles Standish Rice, to help solve the murder because his son, Tolliver, is involved. The boy's torn check to Fowler for the sum of ten thousand dollars was found in the latter's room. When Farraday, Sr., withholds information, Stan tells him frankly he will not be able to help if kept in the dark.

CHAPTER VII

Farraday had crumpled one coat lapel into a wad while Stan was speaking. In a few short minutes he had changed into a tired old man worried about his boy. He glanced down at his own clenched hand, surprised to find he was clutching the soft lapel.

"I overestimate my own ability where Tolly is concerned," he realized his words were nearly inaudible, and coughed slightly to clear his throat. "I suppose it is useless to attempt any evasion. A family is dragged into filth today if they find themselves remotely fringing anything which is most for the press. I didn't know anything about Edward Fowler, except that Tolly and Eve had met him once or twice. I did know Tolly loved to gamble."

"He's come to you for help?" The Captain asked.

Farraday shook his head. "It's been in him since he was a child. I had a protest from one of the schools he attended. I give him an allowance of five hundred a month. Most of the time he is borrowing from his sister. She gets the same amount. I was hopeful that Tolly had finally quit."

"What made you think that?" Stan asked quickly.

"He promised me."

"Recently?"

"Less than two weeks ago," Farraday looked rather puzzled. "It was unusual, now that I think of it. Eve came to me very much worried—said that Tolly had been plunging on the horses. I spoke to him at her suggestion. He was most reasonable. Admitted that he had been bad. We came to an agreement—possibly a compromise would be better. He could play bridge or poker any time—either Eve or I were with him. He promised to stay away from the horses and dogs entirely. I have no reason to think he has broken his word. He's not vicious. He is just young and high-spirited—with a love of excitement much like my own."

Stan was gazing absently at two photographs set in a double silver frame, obviously the brother and sister under discussion. The boy was wearing a white polo shirt, open at the throat. Stan looked from the picture to the father, recognizing the same straight nose, high broad forehead, and wide sensitive mouth. Bruce Farraday's small eyes were missing in both children. Their mother had left them, as a crowning heritage, wide, direct brown eyes, smouldering and alive with the joy to be had from living.

"Your daughter doesn't look as if she was in the habit of carrying tales about her brother."

Farraday followed Stan's gaze to the pictures. "I said it was unusual, Mr. Rice. There is not much more I

"I'll come to that in a minute. Did you see Edward Fowler arrive at the club?"

"The Captain asked me that this morning. I'm not sure. I think Fowler was sitting out on the upstairs porch when we got there. He came to our table and spoke to Tolly shortly after we started to play. Tolly introduced him to Lydia and me."

"Dawson knew him?"

"As I recall it, Fowler spoke both to Tolly and Dawson when he came to the table. I was playing at the moment, and didn't pay much attention."

"Did you know any of the people

"I want to meet your son and daughter as soon as they return tonight."

can tell you."

"A few things. I want to meet your son and daughter as soon as they return tonight. It is important that I do so—regardless of the hour. Will you phone me immediately when they arrive?"

"Surely."

"Do you mind a few more questions regarding last night?"

"Not at all."

"Did your party stay together at the Sunset Club, or did you play at different tables?"

"There was only one table playing when we arrived."

"What time was that?"

"Shortly after eight, I believe. The manager of the club—Munroe—was playing with a Mr. and Mrs. Bessinger, and a young fellow, Glen Neal. Eve and Lydia, that's Mrs. Stanton, knew Neal. He's a society reporter, or something of the kind."

"You split up?"

"Partly. Eve went to the table with Neal and the Bessingers. Munroe cut out. A retired naval officer, Commander Eric Dawson, came in at almost the same time we did. He made up a fourth. Tolliver and I played together against the Commander and Lydia."

"You knew Commander Dawson?"

"No. Munroe introduced us. Later we went to a night club together."

with whom Fowler played?"

"No. There was a blonde—beautiful but vulgar. She created a small scene before Fowler left. That's how I came to notice her."

"And heard her, too. Millie isn't beautiful, she's absolutely splendid—and lovable as a she-adder."

Stan stood up. "What time did you leave, Mr. Farraday?"

"It was nearly one. Glen Neal suggested we all go to the Alligator Inn on the Tamiami Trail. Lydia approved—so I went along, although I was feeling tired by then."

"Fowler had left some time before?"

"Nearly two hours. Does that agree with what you have learned, Captain LeRoy?"

"Very close. Toby Munroe says it was quarter past eleven when Fowler's car went down the drive toward Flagler Street. We haven't had statements from all the others yet."

"How many of you went to the Alligator Inn?"

"Four of us in my car—Lydia and I, Commander Dawson, and Tolliver. Eve and Glen Neal rode with the Bessingers."

ON SCREENS IN BRISTOL

BRISTOL

What is said to be one of the most thrilling prison escape scenes ever filmed forms a highlight of "Condemned Women," RKO Radio's new Sally Eilers-Louis Hayward vehicle, in which Anne Shirley also has a featured part.

Much of the picture's tense action is laid in a penitentiary for women, where the daily lives of the inmates, spurred to revolt by the harshness of the matrons, are revealed in vivid detail. Miss Eilers attempting to sever her undercover romance with Hayward, the prison doctor, to keep from ruining his brilliant career, is involved with Lee Patrick in the nerve-rattling jailbreak climax.

George Irving, Esther Dale, Richard Bond and other well-known players are in the cast of this production by Robert Sisk, directed by Lew Landers.

A startling new light is thrown upon industrial warfare by Columbia's "Highway Patrol," which comes to the Grand Theatre today, with Robert Paige, Jacqueline Wells, Robert Middlemass and Arthur Loft in the leading roles.

The picture concerns a plot to destroy a great oil refinery whose owner is resisting the move of competitors to raise the price of gasoline. When modern chemical fire-fighting quickly controls the incendiary firing of a big oil tank, the plotters introduce a dynamite into the plant for more drastic action.

Robert Paige plays the young highway patrolman who takes over the policing of the threatened refinery and detects its enemies within. He captures the dynamiter and then discovers the plant will be bombed from the air that night. How he circumvents the aerial bombers, exposes the principals in the plot, and wins the girl is revealed in swift dramatic action in the Columbia picture directed by Charles C. Coleman, Jr., from a screen original by Robert Kent.

The dominant figure of the shrewd young officer is portrayed by Paige, whose work in Columbia's "There's Always A Woman" marked him for rapid advance. Jacqueline Wells plays a part that calls for the qualities of a comedienne as well as charm.

Middlemass and Loft head the supporting cast, which includes Ann Doran, Al Bridge, Eddie Foster, George McKay and Eddie Laughton.

HIGH SCHOOL SQUAD TOLD TO GET INTO TRIM FOR SEASON

Coach Juenger Tells Boys
They Must Take Off That Fleshy Weight

ONLY 18 REPORTED
Opening Game of Season is About Three Weeks Away

When a Bristol High football team needs to cut down on their weight it is an oddity for Ripley. Yet that was the prescription ordered by Coach Steve Juenger following the initial practice sessions of the grid candidates who reported for the 1938 squad yesterday afternoon at the local high school field.

However, Juenger was not speaking of brawny weight for that surely would call for a Ripley statement. But rather he was speaking of the excess fleshy weight caused by lack of exercise, over indulgence and such over the summer season. This is what must be cut down before the team can start getting serious about their opening contest less than three weeks away.

Incidentally the opener this season is scheduled with the tough Collingdale eleven, who made a very impressive record on the gridiron last year. And with such a strong club for the "lead off" the boys, therefore, must get down to hard work right from the start this year. The Collingdale club is aided by the assistance of Joe Drulis, former Temple guard, who helped the East beat the West in the annual East-West tilt last New Year's Day.

The squad that reported to Juenger yesterday was very light in numbers, totaling only a dozen and a half, which was the lightest turnout on the first day of practice in a number of years. John Cocordas, who hovers around the 200 mark, is the heaviest man on the squad at the present time.

Because the team will be unable to carry a large number of players this year, coach has requested only those left over from last year's squad to report until further notice is issued to the contrary.

Of those who were on the squad last season, eight failed to put in an appearance at yesterday's practice session. They included Jesse VanZant, Bill Gallagher, Danny DiMidio, Hardy Johnson, Harrison Fisher, Bill Sulfas, Vance Betz, and Charlie Locke.

The handful who were out yesterday included Wilbur Van Lenten, Joe Giacella, Wilmer White, Jim Orzali, Jack Louder, Tom Collier, Harry Seebold, Steve Florito, Albert Tomlinson, Morris Carter, Leonard Fell, John Cocordas, Joe Fallon, Don Glazier, John Ferry, Joe Dugan, John Dugan, and Walt Hardy.

Due to repairs on the high school edifice, the boys are at the present time very much handicapped through the lack of a gymnasium and a shower room, both of which are extremely inconvenient to the players following practice.

Coach requests that all candidates from last year's squad who were not out to practice yesterday to please report for today's session at 2:30.

ST. LUKE'S NINE WINS TWO TILTS FROM CROYDON

A large crowd turned out Monday afternoon to witness St. Luke's capture both games of a twin bill from the Y. M. A. of Croydon.

Errors and poor base-running by the Y. M. A. contributed the margin of victory in the first game whereas long distance hitting earned the Saints their victory in the second.

Pitching honors favored Riley in the first game. He struck out 8 men, walked 3 and allowed 3 hits while Pluma struck out 5, walked 6 and allowed 4 hits. Lyn Woolvin proved more effective with men on bases than Cahill in the second tilt.

Ralph Kratz captured batting honors for the day, getting 3 hits in 5 trips to the plate, one of which was a long home run to right center field.

The final and deciding game of the series will probably be played Sunday, September 11th, at the Y. M. A. field.

NEW USE FOR VINEGAR

LUCKNOW, India.—(INS)—In the belief that they will prevent cholera germs from entering the premises, small bottles of vinegar are being hung in front of houses in Lucknow, where a cholera epidemic has taken a heavy toll of life. Vinegar bottles, according to a local superstition, are supposed to destroy the germs before they can cross the threshold of houses.

RUTLAND, Vt.—(INS)—Rain or no rain, when hayin' time comes around, farmer Hen Doolittle is gonna get his chores done.

His land flooded by the recent rains, Doolittle, aided by two farmhands, donned tight and life preservers, took down the barn door, converted the aged door into a raft, and made nine trips between the back knoll and the barn without casualty.

Insurgent Troops Advance

Hendaye, France, Sept. 7.—Spanish insurgent troops advanced deep into government territory in the Ebro River sector of Catalonia today, under cover of aerial and artillery bombardments, according to an insurgent communiqué.

France's forces captured the height of Sierra de Los Caballos, southeast of Gandesa, and inflicted heavy losses on the government defenders, it was asserted. Barcelona admitted heavy insurgent attacks were carried out in the region, but claimed government forces were "resisting heroically" and "inflicting incalculable losses upon the insurgents."

Did Hines Take Money?

New York, Sept. 7.—Did Jimmy Hines take money from the "Dutch" Schultz mob of political racketeers?

That was the crucial issue today at the conspiracy trial of the Tammany leader, whom District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey charges was the paid "fixer" for the mob. Four persons have testified that they paid money to Hines—usually in lump sums of $500—and all of them have been positive on that point.

But, under cross-examination, defense attorneys have steered the court away from that all-important point—was the money really paid to Hines?

drunk, Arthur Horton, of Bristol, was fined $200 and costs yesterday and a prison sentence of 30 days to two years was suspended upon payment of fine and costs. He was arrested by Corporal R. D. Evans, of the Langhorne sub-station of Motor Police after playing darts at a Croydon tap room and getting drunk, according to his own testimony before Judge Keller.

Aithia Bourassa, 46, of Cornwells Heights, pleaded guilty yesterday to driving while drunk on June 26 on the Bristol pike near St. Charles Convent. Bourassa told Judge Keller that he had four beers, went to a carnival and misjudged the distance in backing his automobile into another car. Bourassa testified that he has worked for the same firm, a boiler factory, for 20 years and had only been in trouble once, about 10 years ago. He told the court that he has sold his automobile. A fine of $200 and costs was imposed and a prison sentence of 30 days to two years was suspended upon payment of fine and costs.

Two colored defendants, Frank Jones and Isaiah McClain, Phila., charged with the unlawful manufacture and possession of liquor in Rockhill Township on August 10 when the plant was raided by State Liquor Control Board Agents, were fined $250 and costs and sentenced to one to three years in the Bucks County Prison, yesterday.

Officer Charles A. Yerkes informed Judge Keller that Jones and McClain were squatters and that the still was located in a woods about three miles west of Sellersville. The plant consisted of two 500-gallon stills, one found in operation and the second not yet completed. There were 30 200-gallon mash barrels, 15 of which were full. The officers found 12 5-gallon cans of the finished product.

Jones, one of the defendants, told Judge Keller the plant had been in operation only five hours after being set up.

Both defendants admitted being in the same business before as helpers to Jones' brother and a fellow named Brown, who owned the Rockhill Township plant too. Both men had served time for the same offense in New Jersey.

"You fellows are old offenders," Judge Keller remarked. "There are strike off judgment. Defendant's rule so many places these days where you can buy lawful liquor and good liquor that there is no reason why moonshine should be made. I only hope that we will be able to catch up with the big fellows in this game."

Judge Keller warned the defendants not to apply for a parole before the minimum sentence had expired.

Francis Smith, 17, of 2628 Memphis street, Philadelphia, who pleaded guilty to sodomy, larceny and receiving stolen goods, assault and battery, was given a suspended sentence yesterday by Judge Calvin S. Boyer and placed on probation for three years.

Smith, a high school student, pleaded guilty to attacking a 12-year-old boy and a 13-year-old boy near Torresdale on July 4. The little boys were beaten up and robbed of a wrist watch and pen-knife.

"What you did could have been looked on as highway robbery and you could have been sent to the penitentiary for 20 years," Judge Boyer remarked.

The boy had excellent character testimonials.

Judge Keller granted two divorces, as follows: Paul W. Clemmer vs. Florence Esenwein Clemmer, and Florence E. Hawes vs. Clark J. Hawes. Judge Boyer granted a divorce in the case of Charles Allen Bartron vs. Ruby Genevieve Bartron.

Judge Keller handed down the following opinions:

A. Paul Townsend vs. Helen Elizabeth Townsend, sur rule for alimony pendente lite. The rule is made absolute and libellant is directed to pay the sum of $10 per week to the respondent for her support pending the determination of the divorce proceedings or until the further order of court, said order to be computed and become effective as of September 14, 1937, the date of the filing of the petition.

Frederick DeBrine vs. James J. Wolf, sur rule to modify or correct award of arbitrators and sur rule to strike off judgment. Defendant's rule to strike off judgment is made absolute and judgment is stricken off. Arbitrators are directed to file their report of award according to law and any judgment entered thereon to be in accordance with the requirements of the Act of Assembly. Defendant's rule to modify and correct the award is dismissed without prejudice to and with leave to the defendant to file a new petition for reference, modification, or correction of the award as he may determine after such award shall have been filed.

The regular session of Bucks County Criminal Court will get under way next Monday, September 12, with the Grand Jury in Session. Trial by traverse jurors will get under way Monday, September 19.

CHILDKILLER!

A BALL bounces out on the highway. A small boy chases madly after it, seeing, hearing or thinking of nothing but getting the ball. A driver of a speeding car suddenly sees the boy dash right in front of him. A sickening screeching of brakes—a swerve to the right. Too Late. A little life has been taken.

This happens when drivers do not obey the law to slow down near schools or where children are playing. When intent on a game, youngsters will forget all they have been told about safety. You must think for them, to be ready at any instant to "stop on a dime".

Warning signs are not ornaments put up to beautify town or country. They are there for a very good reason. Follow their instruction to the letter and you may save yourself a lifetime of regret. Local and State Police are going to see that the signs are obeyed. Be wise, read the signs and do what they tell you.

WARNING!

All Drivers found guilty of motor vehicle accidents involving personal injury, must be re-examined to determine ability to drive.
